

ABSTRACT

TFT LCD including a first substrate and a second substrate, a scanning line on the first substrate, a signal line formed to cross the scanning line, a channel layer formed along the signal line and extended to a portion of the scanning line, source and drain electrodes formed separated on the channel layer over the scanning line, a pixel electrode connected to the drain electrode, and a liquid crystal layer formed between the first substrate and the second substrate.